ONE OF THE NATION’S TOP-RANKED GRADUATE BUSINESS PROGRAMS HAS BECOME EVEN BETTER
Pace University’s Lubin School of Business has always been known for its forward-thinking, practical approach to the traditional MBA. But now in the 21st century, as business environments are evolving even more rapidly, Pace has revitalized its MBA curriculum. The result: an innovative MBA degree that provides advanced skills and tools through a common core of integrated courses with more connection across business fields. Plus more flexibility so you can create your own academic path. You earn your degree after 52 credits – the equivalent of 16 courses.

The program makes business sense. First you complete preliminary skills at your own pace – math, computer skills, and business writing. The common Core includes 28 credits (8 courses), so that you can spend more time in your Career Concentration (15 credits) and Breadth Electives (9 credits). Greater flexibility allows you to pursue your personal interests. And, as always, Pace builds on its tradition of combining theoretical knowledge with practical experience through professionally oriented faculty and programs such as cooperative education and executives in residence.
JUMP-START THE JOB HUNT | Preparation for finding a job now begins in the first orientation session, where members of the Career Services department engage new students in job-hunting strategies and requirements. New online resources are available to match interests and skills with opportunities throughout the U.S. and abroad.

THE NEW MBA CURRICULUM

Because all students take the same Core courses, they enter their advanced courses with similar levels of competency, which raises the level of discourse and collaboration throughout the curriculum.

Core
(8 courses, 28 credits)

In the core curriculum, academic content has been restructured and integrated to reflect the emerging business conditions our students will successfully manage after graduation.

- Organizational Behavior and Leadership Skills
- Marketing and Electronic Business
- Financial and Managerial Accounting
- Business Economics
- Business Statistics and Modeling
- Operations and Quality Management
- Managerial Finance
- Business Strategy and Stakeholder Responsibility
Career Concentration
(5 courses, 15 credits)

Career Concentration allows students to personally create their own business focus by allowing individual selection of an array of courses.

Accounting
Business Economics*
E-Business
Entrepreneurship
Financial Management
Information Systems
International Business Management
Management Science
Marketing Management
Taxation*

*Breadth Electives
(3 courses, 9 credits)

With the enhanced selection of breadth electives, students now have greater flexibility than before to pursue contemporary issues or personal interests.

Outside the student’s career concentration and including one approved international course.

Lubin has designed courses to be more intense and challenging in order to integrate subject matter. This integration allows for a reduction in the required program from 62 credits to 52.
