Pace University, a private comprehensive university with campuses in Westchester County and New York City invites applications and nominations for a tenure track Assistant Professor in Early Childhood for the Fall Semester of 2005.

The School of Education faculty at Pace University engages in a wide range of diverse scholarly, teaching, and civic activities that create a rich, dynamic learning environment for our students and an intellectually challenging and rigorous collegial community. We are seeking a colleague who has a doctorate [or ABD] in Early Childhood, with teaching experience, a record of scholarship, and a desire to participate in a community of scholar/teachers.

A successful candidate would teach graduate level courses in fifth-year or post-baccalaureate M.S. Ed. programs, participate in curriculum development, engage in scholarly activities, and be an active participant in the work of the School of Education and Pace University. A successful candidate would also share our belief that teachers are reflective practitioners who promote justice, create caring classrooms, and enable all students to be successful learners.

Applicants should have a background, experience and general pedagogical expertise in teaching young children (ages 3-7). Preference to candidates with additional expertise in educational psychology, development, foundations, literacy, assessment, ESL, technology, and/or special education. We seek individuals who are reflective and who integrate theory and practice.

Pace University is an Equal Employment and Affirmative Action Employer, committed to ensuring a diverse learning and working environment. Consistent with our commitment to a diverse faculty and staff to serve our diverse student population, candidates of color and individuals from other traditionally under-represented groups are strongly encouraged to apply. For more information about Pace University, please visit our website at http://www.pace.edu.

Interested candidates should send a cover letter, vitae, and letters from three references to:

Ms. Annjanet Woodburn, Assistant Dean
School of Education, Pace University
861 Bedford Road
Pleasantville, NY 10570